From Thursday January 24. to Monday January 28. 1677.

Tangier, Decemb. 20.

THe 17 inſtant arrived here a French Veſſel, bound for St Malo, the Maſter reports, that the 16 inſtant he met with five Turks Men of War, who ſailed out of the Streights, that he learnt of them, that there were 14 of thoſe Corſairs abroad, and that at Algiers they were fitting out all the ſhips they could.

Marſeilles, Jan. 18. Yeſterday arrived here the Crown and Hopeful Merchant, from Alicant, by whom we have advice, that Sir John Narborough was ſailed from Argiers for Leghorne to Victual; and that the Guernſey Frigat, Captain Harman Commander, mounted only with 29 Guns, and 110 men, had a ſmart Engagement with an Algierine of 50 Guns, and 500 men; that the Turks, encouraged by the diſproportion of their force, had lay'n the Frigat twice on board, but were as often repulſed with great loſs, the Turks leaving the laſt time three or four men behind them, and afterwards were brought by the Lee. Captain Harman, who behaved himſelf with the greateſt bravery imaginable, was killed, with 8 or 9 men, and about double that number wounded.

Wormes, Jan. 19. The 16 inſtant the Duke of Lorrain begun his journy towards Vienna; the Count de Caprara is come hither, and has taken upon him the command of the Imperial Forces, till ſuch time as the Marquis of Baden comes hither. The two Battalions of the Regiment of Portia, which were at Treves, are marched to Luxembourg. The Imperial Troops which were quartered in Franconia, Suabia, and the Lower Palatinate, have paſſed the Rhine, at leaſt part of them, and march towards Birkenfeldt. Some of thoſe Troops are likewiſe ordered to march towards Hungary.

Straelſond, Jan. 21. On the 15 inſtant, Count Coningſmark, as we have already told you, paſſed over to the Iſle of Rugen with what Force he could make, which conſiſted in between 1500 and 2000 Horſe, and about 3000 Foot. We will give you now the particulars as well of that as of what hath happened ſince; Some hours before he entred upon this action, he had given the Enemy a falſe alarm with about 60 Boats and ſmall Veſſels, but the Danes took no notice thereof. In the evening, when it began to grow dark, he cauſed the Troops that were here to embark, together with 200 men more from Gripſwalde, and landed with them on the Iſle of Rugen, without the leaſt oppoſition of the Danes, and having drawn the Gariſon out of the Fehr Schans, whoſe room was ſupplyed by Burghers of this place, he poſted himſelf. The Cavalry paſſed over the Sunday and Monday following; The Danes had drawn themſelves, being about 7000 ſtrong, together about the Fehr Schans, but after ſome ſkirmiſhes, retired from thence. On the 18*th, about eight in the morning, the two Bodies came ſo near, that they began to make uſe of their Cannon; that of the Suedes was planted very advantageouſly upon a Hill, and very much incommoded the Danes, to whoſe misfortune it happened that their General*, Major-General Rumer was killed by the ſecond or third ſhot that was made, which put the Danes in ſome diſorder, occaſioned by the diſpute there was among the principal Officers, who ought to command. However the Danes Left Wing advanced againſt the Suedes Right, but was ſo briskly received, that they were not only forced to give ground, but likewiſe fell into great confuſion, of which the Suedes took the advantage, preſſed upon them, and made themſelves Maſters of ſix pieces of Cannon; which ſo greatly diſcouraged the Danes Foot, that they threw down their Arms and fled. In the mean time Count Coningſmarke advanced with the Suedes Left Wing, and engaged the Daniſh Cavalry, who after one diſcharge gave ground and fled, leaving the Suedes Maſters of the Field, of their Baggage, and Artillery; but Count Coningſmarke purſued the flying Cavalry; and the next morning found them drawn up in a Body, being 3000 ſtrong. They deſired liberty to march off, which was refuſed them by the Count, and no other condition allowed, than to yield themſelves upon diſcretion, Count Coningſmarke declaring that if they killed their Horſes, they ſhould not expect any quarter, to which they were forced to ſubmit, and moſt of them have been brought priſoners hither. All our Privateers are gone and going to Sea, in hopes to meet with the Daniſh Officers, who got away in Boats, and one Veſſel, in which were eleven, hath been already brought in. In Bergen, the principal Town in Rugen, we have found a great quantity of Proviſions, which will maintain our Troops for three months. This great Victory hath coſt us not above 300 men, and one Officer of Note.

A LIST OF PRISONERS.

1 Colonel, 5 Lieutenant-Colonels, of which 3 are Earls; 4 Majors, 11 Captains of Horſe, 18 Captains of Foot, 6 Captain-Lieutenants, 5 Quartermaſters, 50 Lieutenants, 12 Cornets, 41 Enſigns, 3 Adjutants, and about 4500 common Soldiers, 12 braſs Field-pieces, 5 Mortar-pieces, and above 40 Enſigns and Standards. Beſides which, 15 Officers more are juſt now brought in. On the 9*th of the next month will be held here a Thankſgiving day for this great Victory.*

Ditto, Jan. 25. Priſoners continue to be brought in daily as well as wounded men of the Enemy, of which we have here near 800. Some of the principal Officers have ſaved themſelves in Boats, and as we hear are got to Roſtock. The Cannon taken from the Enemy ſtand now on our Market place. The Imperial Dragoons are ſaid to have behaved themſelves very well, and were moſt cut off. The priſoners that are not natural born Danes, which are not many, have all taken ſervice, ſo that we ſhall now be able to make up a Body of 10000 men.

Copenhagen, Jan. 22. Yeſterday we received the ill news of the defeat of our Troops on the Iſle of Rugen, and that only ſome few Officers came off, the reſt being all killed or taken priſoners.
